- Manage production of Stars of Science Season 18, a 7-episode season drawn from a pool of almost 800 applicants, with 40 selected to appear on the show.
- Own the master program tracker across the legal, data, communications and production workstreams, running daily check-ins with the Program Manager and flagging risks and blockers early.
- Serve as the working-level liaison between QSTP and Zinc Media Group on all production deliverables, coordinating reviews with QSTP's legal, incubation and communications teams.
- Supervise and mentor the intern team supporting the season — assigning tasks, reviewing quality and acting as first point of escalation.
- Draft board-facing and partner-facing materials, including briefs, frameworks, budgets, the participant benefit framework, offer documents and newsletter content.
- Support delivery against the season's targets — on time and on budget, online engagement and advertising revenue, and successful founder pipeline and prototyping outcomes — alongside marketing, social and PR for Season 18.

Snoonu Brand Manager

May 2025 – Jun 2026

- Oversaw the full campaign lifecycle from concept development to launch and performance optimization, using performance insights to refine messaging, creative direction, and audience targeting.
- Conceived and executed the Snoonu Hackathon — the largest hackathon in Qatar — with 750 participants (including international participants), a QAR 100K prize pool, 4 winners, 20 direct hires, and national trending status.
- Organised the Snoonu Startup Factory Competition, a Shark Tank-style initiative drawing ~400 registrations and selecting 20 startups, each receiving USD 50K – USD 250K in funding — personally consulted and mentored all of the winning startups.
- Hosted 2 e-sports tournaments and led large-scale community partnerships with Qatar Foundation and Qatar TV, driving societal-level brand impact.
- Partnered with Product, PR, and Government Relations to deliver national campaigns; mentored and supported marketing team members while fostering a culture of experimentation, creative thinking, and data-driven decision-making.
